Resolved by the County Court of Montagement country now in quarterly session, That whilst we know that it is our duty to humbly submit to this and to every other dispensation of a just and holy God, we are compelled to admit of a deep regret, and lingering, heartfelt sadness, as reigning within our breasts at a loss so great to ourselves and othe entire country as that so lately susained by the death of that true and trustrorthy guardian of right and justice, Dr. oshma Cobb.

Resolved by the County Court of Montagone or The Color of Issain was most boundly indutiged in during Mr. Jerome Duncan's performance of "The Colored Parson on Courtship."

The vocal exercise and recitations were enthusiastically received. The moral drama in the "Six Virtues" was well illustrated.

Resolved, That whilst the city of Clarksville and the county of Montgomery must mourn the loss of one of their noblest and best elizens, and their people a tried and true friend—true to every trust and reliable under all circumstances—the County Court has lost one of its purest and mostable members, who, regardless of friend or foe, ever fearlessly advecated and sought to do what he deemed to be for the best interest of the county and her people.

Resolved, That we recognize in our deseased colleague a typical specimen of the dramatis persons are entitled to more than a passing notice. Mr. Mattill's "Hunt for French Phrases," was as earnest and amusing as that of the young lady who undertook to find unus electionary. The programme was pleasantly varied from grave to gray, and the eye all the while delighted, with the fair young faces of the performers. Some of the beaux and belies of Clarksville were present, but not so

Resolved, That we recognize in our deceased colleague a typical specimen of the in the prosecution of enterprises for the people's interest; always the uncompromising antagonist of schemes for enriching individuals at the public expense; that, speaking in behalf of the people of Montgemery county, we lament in his death the loss of one always active in the promotion of their welfare and the assertion of their rights.

Resolved, That we tender to his bereaved family our sincere, hearfielt sympathies in this their great and irreparable loss, hoping that they may ever find peace and true consolation in trusting to that true and blessed hope, earth's brightest angel, which tells them of a purer and a brighter land than this, where parting will be no more forever, and a reunion with their loved ones there.
